

Mark Emly

I have been involved with All Saints' for many years. All three of our children attended the school and were happy here. The oldest Hannah is now a teacher, Jack is in the Metropolitan Police Force and Joe is still at John Taylor High School.

My own career is in education; I have been a teacher, deputy headteacher and headteacher. I have worked for a County Council since 2000, initially as a school improvement advisor and then more recently in a more strategic role. I have also been an Ofsted inspector for several years.

I thoroughly enjoy being a governor having been on the Governing Body since 2006, initially as a Local Authority Governor and then as a Foundation Governor.

I hope that I am able to bring to the role my experience as a parent and from my professional background.