Dear Parents

We have just received the following information from Health, Safety and Wellbeing Service, HR Corporate Services at Staffordshire County Council.

" The Chief Medical officer has today announced a change from 14 days to 10 days for self isolation as a contact of a positive case. This change comes into effect from Monday. Please read the item in the link below carefully. Please note the change to how the 10 days are calculated. The self-isolation periods will begin on the day after exposure, a test or the start of symptoms. This may mean that your self isolating classes/cohorts or bubbles can return earlier next week if by Monday they have completed the 10 days or more of the isolation period in line with the new calculation. Therefore it is important to ensure that you look at the date the isolating group last had contact with the positive case and from the next day commence your 10 day count.

This information as just been announced on news and the above is the only guidance available. We will keep you updated."
