

Mark Emly

I have been involved with All Saints' for many years. All three of our children attended the school and were very happy here. The oldest Hannah is now a teacher, Jack works in London and Joe is at university.

My own career has been in education, particularly in the field of special educational needs and I was a teacher, deputy headteacher and headteacher. I then worked for a County Council for many years, initially as a school improvement advisor and then in more strategic role. I now work as an independent education consultant.

I thoroughly enjoy being a governor, having been on the Governing Board since 2006, initially as a Local Authority Governor and then as a Foundation Governor. I hope that I am able to bring to the role the experience I have gained from my professional background and also from being a parent.